

DESCRIPTION OF THE SIAMESE CHARACTERS.

In describing the variations that occur in the Siamese characters the terminology used is that given on this page, as follows:-

I The various regions of the individual characters are named as follows:-

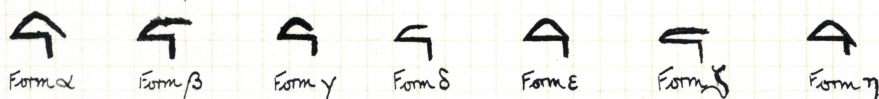

II A break, gap, or gash in a line is where the line is completely interrupted. The three terms are differentiated by the size and character of the interruption.

III A notch is where the interruption does not completely divide the line, thus:-

IV A link is an irregularity in the shape, but not in the continuity of the line, thus:-

V SEVEN distinct forms of the head of the character I can be distinguished, as follows:-

VI NINE distinct shapes of the head of the character 7 can be distinguished, as follows:-

VII EIGHT different positions of the accent e in relation to the character 2 can be distinguished, as follows:-
